The University undertook a comprehensive update of its campus plan to establish a new vision and direction for the future of its campus, which dated back to the 1960s. DIALOG led the engagement, planning, and design, which involved background research and analysis, land use planning and design, and integration of transportation, infrastructure (including civil and district energy), and landscape architecture. Extensive engagement activities included both university stakeholders and the surrounding off-campus community. The end result was an updated campus plan that was adopted in 2016.
